SITUATION SUMMARY

Highway 101 Closure, Burlingame, San Mateo County

On 8/28/15 at 2133 hours, a PG&E transmission tower collapsed, causing a big power surge in the Bay Area. A third-party construction crew with a crane struck the transmission tower causing high-powered transmission lines to fall onto the highway and stopping traffic for over six hours until PG&E could de-energize the lines and safely move drivers out of the way. The wait was due to the need for special equipment to arrive on scene.

- All lanes (northbound and southbound) of Highway 101 between Millbrae Avenue and Anza Boulevard in Burlingame, near San Francisco International Airport, were closed due to downed power lines across the freeway.
- All lanes of southbound Highway 101 reopened at approximately 1435 hours on 08/29/15.
- The #1, 2, and 3 lanes of northbound Highway 101 reopened at approximately 1540 hours on 08/29/15. The far right lane and the Anza Avenue on-ramp/off-ramp of northbound Highway 101 remained closed for PG&E to continue repairs until further notice. Also, Broadway and Burlingame overpass remain closed.
- Caltrans has scheduled full freeway closures on northbound and southbound Highway 101, between Anza Blvd and Broadway, in Burlingame tonight at 2200 hours until 0400 hours Monday morning, 08/31/15. These closures are required to repair overhead power cables. Motorists are advised to expect delays and to use alternate routes during these closures.
- While some drivers were trapped in their vehicles due to power lines being on them, there are no reports of injuries.
- During the closure, drivers were advised to seek alternate routes through the region such as Interstate 280 and El Camino. Per CHP ENTAC, northbound traffic was diverted at Anza Boulevard, and southbound traffic was taken off at Millbrae Avenue. Once taken off the highway, traffic was rerouted through local city streets and then back onto Highway 101.
- No power outages are reported at this time due to this incident.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Light showers will persist in northern Humboldt and Del Norte Counties through this morning. Temperatures will remain generally below normal for the next several days as a trough sits over the west coast. This trough will also allow shortwaves to swing around the trough possibly bringing brief shots of shower activity to the region mid week. Most areas have been kept dry in the forecast after Sunday except for a slight chance of showers in northern Del Norte County Wednesday. A warming trend may begin late in the week into next weekend as the trough begins to shift east.

Medford Weather:

A long wave trough is now moving onshore, with most of the energy directed to the north of the forecast area. Still, the Medford region will catch the southern end of this system. The coast and coast range will get the bulk of the precipitation, a quarter to a half an inch, through this afternoon, and the upper Umpqua and Cascades will pick up some lighter rain this afternoon. There will be light showers this afternoon and evening over most of the rest of the west side, but coverage will be spotty with light amounts, generally less than a tenth of an inch. That trough will kick inland to the east of the area early Sunday afternoon, and it will take any straggling precipitation with it. Sunday will be cool with inland highs around 10 degrees below normal

Reno Weather:

High pressure builds in through mid week as dry weather prevails through the end of the week. Typical late day breezes with slightly below normal temperatures are expected Sunday and Monday. Another low pressure may bring increased winds and further cooling by Thursday with conditions remaining dry.

San Francisco Weather:

A dry upper trough will remain anchored near the west coast through most of the week. Temperatures near the coast will be near seasonal norms, while inland areas will generally be cooler than normal over the next seven days. No rain is expected.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

A broad upper trough remains over northern California. Drier air has settled across the region, with clear skies now prevailing over the interior. A modest onshore breeze continues to blow through the Delta. Temperatures across the forecast area are running 5 to 10 degrees cooler than yesterday morning. A shortwave is approaching the NW California coast, though it's quite a bit weaker than yesterday's frontal system. Precipitation is expected to remain outside of our forecast area. Temperatures this afternoon are expected to reach the mid to upper 80s across the valley today, with 60s to lower 80s over the mountains. These forecast highs are a few degrees cooler than normal.

Hanford Weather:

Dry weather can be expected over interior central California for the next several days. Locally breezy conditions are expected this weekend as a low pressure system impacts the region. By Sunday temperatures will cool to slightly below average. Temperatures are expected to remain near average during next week as onshore flow continues.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A couple of upper level troughs moving into the west coast will bring a cooling trend through Tuesday, along with an increase in night through morning low clouds and fog west of the mountains. An upper trough will linger across the west coast Wednesday through Saturday, keeping temperatures below normal in most areas.

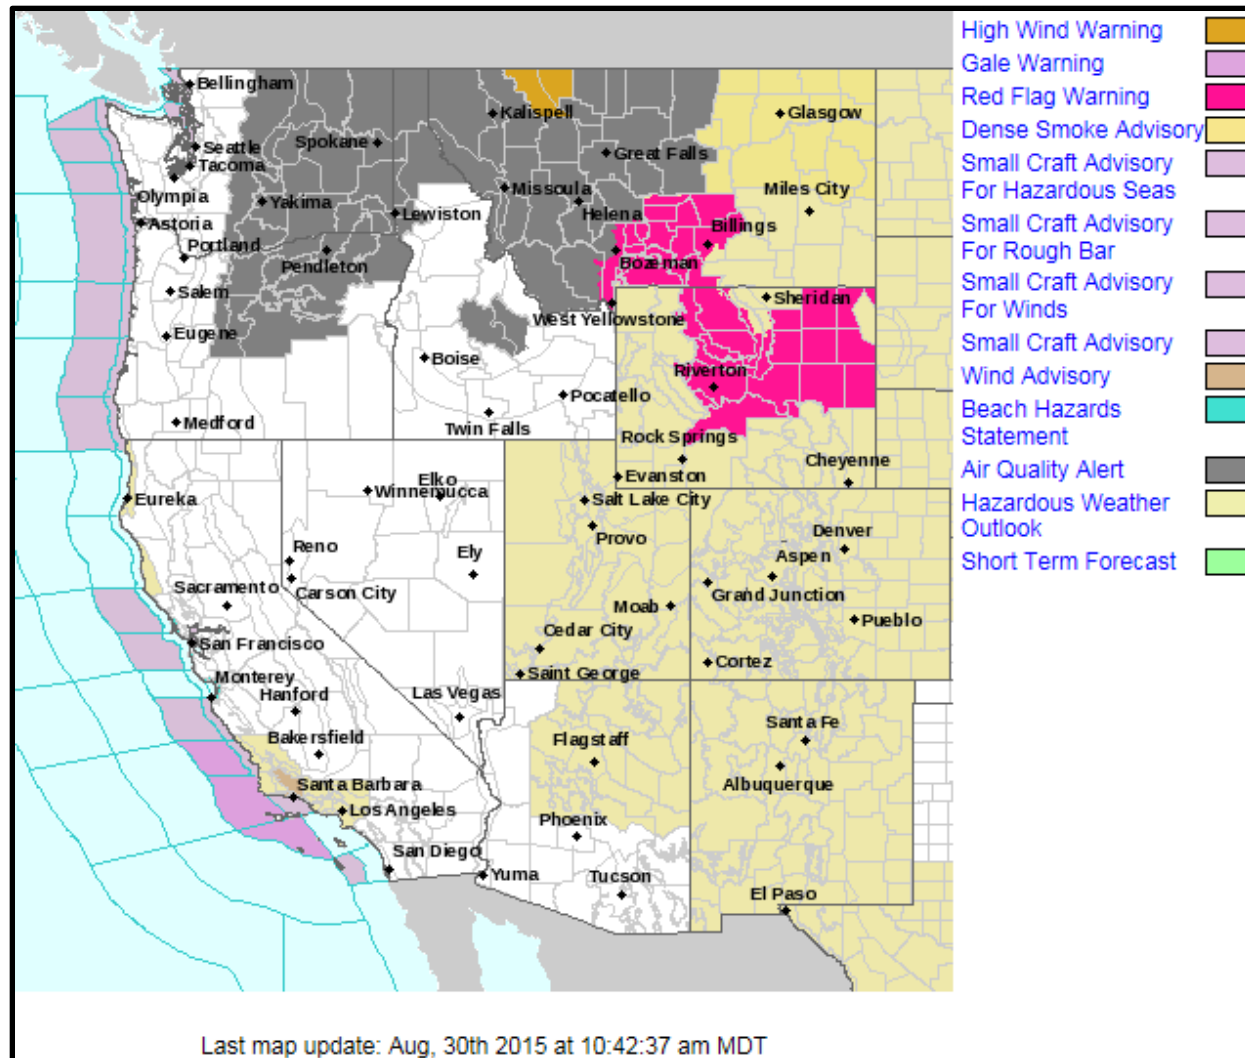

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

A trough of low pressure will develop near the west coast bringing cooling to a little below average for the middle to latter part of the week followed by slow warming next weekend. The marine layer will deepen with night and morning low clouds and patchy fog extending into the far inland valleys for the middle to latter part of the week. Stronger onshore will bring gusty west winds to the mountains and deserts each late afternoon through late evening.

Southeast California Weather:

A broad low pressure trough moving into the Great Basin and Mojave Desert region will bring dry southwest flow with cooler and breezy conditions through the coming week and into the Labor Day weekend. Slight chances for thunderstorms will remain in eastern Arizona with activity decreasing through Tuesday.

- 2015-LAW-15570 08/22/15, 1115 Hours: Fresno County Sheriffs' Office requested assistance in the search for a missing hiker at Wishon Reservoir, which is in the Shaver Lake area of Fresno County. The missing person is a 63 year old female who was reported missing the afternoon of Thursday, August 20. The initial request included a helicopter capable of inserting small search teams into remote search areas at elevations exceeding 10,000 feet. Later requests included 50 ground search personnel, search dogs, infrared search capabilities and communications equipment. Search personnel responded from Yosemite National Park, Kern, Tulare, San Luis Obispo, Contra Costa, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Madera, San Mateo/BAMRU, Marin, Riverside and Monterey Counties. Kings Canyon National Park and the CHP assisted with helicopters. The California National Guard has supported the mission with medium lift and heavy lift helicopters. Cal OES T-Com deployed MIGU-5. The Air Force Rescue Coordination Center (AFRCC) facilitated the use of a Unmanned Aerial System for searches. The search has been severely hampered by smoke from the Rough Fire, which is adjacent to the search area. The smoke has restricted visibility and restricted the use of helicopters. As of Saturday, August 29, the search continues. This search has generated media interest. Update 08/30/15: On 08/29/15 at about 0900 hours, Mutual Aid searchers from Marin County were able to locate the victim. She was alive but had suffered injuries which prevented her from walking out. She was flown by CHP helicopter to a hospital in Fresno. The smoke prevented immediate extraction of approximately 50 searchers. These searchers were successfully extracted the morning of 08/30/15. All Mutual Aid resources released. Mission Closed
